Cohen & Gresser Strengthens Leading Antitrust Practice with Addition of John Roberti in Washington, D.C.

John Roberti Brings Decades of Antitrust Litigation and Enforcement Experience

International law firm Cohen & Gresser today announced that prominent antitrust litigator John Roberti has joined the firm's Antitrust practice as a partner in its Washington, D.C. office. John's arrival is part of the firm's strategic expansion of its Antitrust & Competition capabilities and will strengthen its ability to provide strategic counsel in all aspects of antitrust litigation and investigations.

"As a leading antitrust litigator, John perfectly complements our existing capabilities, and his extensive knowledge and experience will further enhance the firm's already strong antitrust team. I am pleased to welcome him to the firm," said Lawrence T Gresser, global managing partner of Cohen & Gresser.

John will represent clients in civil and criminal enforcement matters on a range of antitrust and competition issues integral to their business operations. He brings significant experience representing companies across all industries at both the trial and appellate levels and advising companies through complex mergers and civil investigations involving a wide range of issues.

He will work alongside distinguished antitrust litigators Melissa H Maxman and Ronald F Wick in Washington, D.C., to form a dynamic team of leading antitrust lawyers who are deeply entrenched in many of the most consequential antitrust matters ongoing in the U.S.

"John has nearly 25 years of experience representing companies in the most significant U.S. antitrust cases. He will substantially enhance our ability to assist clients in high-stakes antitrust disputes," said Melissa, managing partner of the firm's Washington, D.C. office. "As a long-time friend, I am excited to welcome John to the firm's D.C. office and am looking forward to working alongside him to provide clients with exceptional service."

"I have been impressed with the team at Cohen & Gresser for years. The firm's Antitrust group has stood out for its excellent judgment, great clients, and successful trial record," said John. "I am looking forward to joining this creative and nimble group and working alongside great friends."

John has represented companies in many of the largest cartel matters ongoing in the U.S., including representing the largest auto parts manufacturer in the world, a pre-packaged seafood supplier, a pharmaceutical company, a large electronic component supplier, and a global energy supplier. He is an alumnus of the Federal Trade Commission and has an active practice before the antitrust agencies in the United States.

Prior to joining Cohen & Gresser, John was the leader of the Washington D.C. Antitrust practice of a top global law firm. He has been recognized as a leading antitrust lawyer by Chambers, The Legal 500, and Who's Who Legal Competition for many years.
