

Government Relations

C&G's government relations practice navigates the complex intersections of law, policy, legislation, and regulation. With every client, we draw upon our strong network of relationships at the top levels of the Federal government and our understanding of the Washington, DC landscape to design and implement government relations plans that are tailored to our client's unique objectives.

Adam Bramwell leads the practice and has over 25 years of senior Capitol Hill experience, including serving as the chief of staff to U.S. Senator Christopher Coons (D-DE), as the general counsel to the Secretary of the U.S. Senate, and as counsel to the U.S. Senate Select Committee on Ethics. He has strong relationships with key Democrats and Republicans in the Senate and House, and with senior Democratic officials who will be joining the incoming Biden Administration. Adam has extensive experience with building coalitions, advocacy work, and the development, implementation, and operation of congressional, legal, and business ethics programs.