

Due Diligence and Corporate Support

Our Intellectual Property and Technology lawyers provide a full range of services and counseling in connection with corporate transactions. We evaluate third-party patent and trademark holdings for possible acquisition, conduct due diligence assessments on intellectual property aspects of mergers and acquisitions, and negotiate agreements transferring title and rights to intellectual property. We also advise clients on technology-related risk analysis within the context of corporate transactions.

In collaboration with the firm's other practice groups, we also advise technology companies on a broad range of "life cycle" issues, including formation, seed and venture capital, financing, private and public equity, mergers and acquisitions, real property acquisition and lease negotiation, litigation, and compensation and employment matters.